7.30pm

With an opportunity for dialogue after the film

DOWN to EARTH is the story of a London couple breaking away from society with their three children to find a new perspective on life. For five years, travelling six continents, the family goes on a journey of discovery to capture the wisdom of the 'Earth Keepers'. They live with indigenous communities who have retained a natural balance and live in harmony with their surroundings, far removed from the technologically focused cultures of today. Having lived in hiding for centuries, the Keepers of the Earth see that now is the time to step forward and share their insights and wisdom with those who are ready to listen

DOWN to EARTH is a mirror to humanity, a poignant and timely reflection on our civilised world. It is not just the launch of a film. It's the launch of a thought, a vision for the future. The film helps us become aware of our own personal relevance and generate people-powered change from the ground up. The film aims to provoke thought and inspire us to help rediscover the innate wisdom within to become responsible Earth Keepers once again.

DOWN to EARTH is more than a film. It's a tool for change, a real call to action.
